BLISTERS REVEALED IN N. Y. DEATH

By International News Service
Cooperstown, N. Y., Aug. 14.—While five men from musty village law offices argued today over the selection of the jury to try Mrs. Eva Coo on the charge of murdering Happy-Go-Lucky Harry Wright, the defendant was denounced by her former husband, William Coo, a citizen of Calvary, Cal., in a letter to District Attorney Donald H. Grant, the International News Service learned exclusively today.

The woman, accused of crushing out the life of the crippled town character on lonely Crampton mountain, was a figure of sympathy until today when Grant revealed a broken romance.

TIPS OF MYSTIC FIRE
A mysterious fire which followed her home in the Western Canada city, followed the breakup of "Little Eva's" marriage to Coo, early in 1933, less than six months after the pair were wed, according to the prosecutor.

The district attorney disclosed that the woman opened a resort in Cooperstown here in 1932.

Stories of men stifled with liquor added by the hostess, according to the district attorney, failed to stop the popularity of the resort among a certain element in the county and "Little Eva" began to prosper.

In 1932 she had enough saved up to open the roadside near the town of Maryland, where "Gitty" Wright was working as a handmaid when Mrs. Coo insured his life in three policies for $12,000.

WILL TELL THE TRUTH
The witness, whose evidence the state hopes will clinch its case against the woman whose imagination is alleged to have led her to commit murder in the front yard of the half-finished bungalow on Crampton mountain, is Mrs. Coo's 27-year-old mother, indicted with Mrs. Coo.

C. G. Tennant, Mrs. Coo's lawyer, said today she would tell the truth and vindicate herself.

Mrs. Coo's part in the murder of Harry Wright is said to have been that of the "alterco" who state charges she put the finger on Eva's husband, while the roadside house, plunged her heavy car down the mountain driveway to crash the cripple to death.

MRS. EVA COO

Cooperstown, N. Y., Aug. 14.—As a search for a gang that stole $15,000 from an armored car in front of the Union Old Lowell National Park here on Friday, shifted from Boston and Cambridge to Haverhill today, the police case against Carroll F. Smith, a seized a severe setback.

Fingerprints found on the car proved not to be Smith's, the son of a prominent doctor being paid $20,000 bail at East — new-fa fall.

Farmer employee of the truck company are being closely watched by police. Officials think one of them, might have been the "finger man." They also believe one of the old employees might have furnished the key the robbers used to open the house in a Bedford field.

WITNESSES AID ALIBI
Numerous alibi witnesses have been lined up by the defense and will be in court here tomorrow morning. Mrs. Alice Carpenter, of Pawtucket street, whose home is near the house where Smith was living, said she saw him on the place, Friday morning at 10 a. m. J. Walter Langley, of Cheever street, with whom Smith had been living and David Mulaniff, 22, of Varnum street, who was questioned with Smith on Friday night, have begun an investigation of their own, in an attempt to clear their pal.

Another woman who lives in the same house as Mrs. Carpenter also said she saw Smith on the steps of the house.

HOME NEAR SCENE
Police contend that it is only a mile from the Langley home to the bank and this distance could be traveled in a few minutes by a person in a speedy car.

They say that it would have been possible for Smith to have been on the porch at 10 a. m. with his clothes changed. The robbery occurred just after 9 a. m., police point out.

However, Arthur Connell, still definitely places Smith as the man who carried the money from the armored car in the black sedan, the getaway car which was found abandoned in Somerville.

LOVE TRAGEDY MIGHT HAVE BEEN DISINTERRED

By International News Service
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 14.—Whether Freda McKee's body will be disinterred from its grave in an effort to save Bobby Edwards, 21, from a murderer's fate is expected to be determined this week. Defense attorneys in the Wilkes-Barre "American tragedy" today planned a conference with Edwards later in the week to decide the feasibility of asking for an opportunity to obtain their own medical report of how Freda died while swimming in Harvey's lake on July 30.

DEFENSE PLAN
It has been reported, ever since Edwards was jailed on a charge of murdering Freda, that the defense would attempt to show that Bobby's 26-year-old body was already dead when Edwards struck her with a blackjack in order to clear the way for a newer love for Margaret Crain, 23, East Aurora, N. Y. music teacher.

It was revealed earlier that Freda hid the shame of her approaching unwed motherhood from her family.

When the girl learned from Dr. E. L. Meyers she was to bear the child she begged that the youth be concealed from her mother, who waited in an ante-room. Dr. Meyers said:

"I asked her about the boy. She whispered, 'I know where and who.' I said to her then that she ought to get married. And she said, 'Yes, I want to.'"

KEPT FACTS FROM MOTHER
When I asked if the boy would marry her, she dropped her head and her lips were quivering. She didn't answer for a long time and then she said, 'I don't know.' I didn't ask the name of the young man and she never mentioned it.

"Her mother was sitting outside and I said to the girl, now you want to tell your mother about this, don't you?" she cut up from the chair quickly and said, "No, no, I won't tell mother. Please, doctor, don't tell her!"

ROMANCE BREAK FEAR LED TO SLAYING

Springfield, Aug. 14.—That her parents might break up their romance was believed by police today to have caused the fatal shooting of Miss Lena A. Reseigne, 24, by Armand Santaniello, of Eastern avenue, 25, married, alleged confessed slayer.

According to police, Santaniello, an ice pedlar, said that he wished he was dead also.

The parents of the girl were said to have objected to Santaniello's attentions because he is a married man. A divorce action by his estranged wife is now pending. JUST PULLED TRIGGER

Police added that Santaniello told them that he could give no explanation of his actions leading to the shooting of his sweetheart Sunday night, in her home at 411 Florence street.

He said he did not know why he brought a loaded revolver with him when he went to call on her the evening of the tragedy. He declared:

"I pulled the trigger, but I don't know why I did it."

Confronted with the bullet-torn dress of Miss Reseigne and made to face the driver on which the girl's body had been found, Santaniello extracted his former statement that he had found her shot and confessed to the killing, police say.

ALONE IN HOUSE

Santaniello and the girl were said to have been alone in the house when the shooting occurred. According to his statement, they were planning to go to West Springfield for Miss Reseigne's mother, when he went to the kitchen to get a drink.

Returning to the living room he told the girl:

"Well, come on. Let's go get your mother."

Then, according to his alleged confession, he drew his revolver and shot her through the left breast.

Santaniello pleaded not guilty in district court to charges of murder and carrying a loaded revolver and was held without bail for a hearing on August 27.

Complaining that nobody at the City Hospital knew what was needed and that a kitchen equipment engineer should be hired to study the proposed plans, the Boston Finance Commission ordered Mayor Mansfield to delay the planned purchase of $87,000 worth of equipment for the new $350,000 hospital kitchen.

The City Council, however, approved the mayor's request to purchase the equipment. The Mayor estimated he would make a complete survey before any money was spent.

The commission had sent an expert to the hospital it was revealed, whose investigation showed that the estimate was $10,000 higher than necessary. Too many persons would be added to the city payroll under present plans, the report said.

Money borrowed on hospital bonds for 10 to 15 years should not be used to purchase equipment made of a mixture of stainless steel, and galvanized iron, as it would wear out too quickly, it was claimed. Stainless steel instruments should be purchased, the commission suggested.

JUDGE HAYDEN DOUSTER ASKED

The removal of Judge Albert F. Hayden of the Roxbury District Court has been asked in a bill filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives by Representative Tony A. Contrachio of East Boston.

In a statement Contrachio said Judge Hayden had imposed bail of $15,000 on a man charged with allowing a person to operate a motor vehicle without proper authority to do so, and thereby violated the constitution which prevents excessive bail.

The bill of George Ray of Roxbury was reduced from $15,000, that fixed by Judge Hayden, to $200. Chief Justice Walter P. Hall of the Superior Court made the order reducing the bail.

Priest, in Coma 106 Days, Baffles Specialists

Brain specialists are baffled and watch with interest the daily condition of the Rev. Father Edward P. Short of Warren, Pa., who for 106 days has lain unconscious in the Cardinal O'Connell house of St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Father Short, pastor of the Church of the Holy Redeemer, Warren, Pa., was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage on May 1 while going through Southwestern on the way to visit his brother, Bernard Short of Graymire road, Brighton.

Father Short has lived 104 days beyond the time ordinarily allotted by surgeons for persons stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage. Death usually occurs within five days, records reveal.

The battle for the 56-year-old priest's life has been led by Dr. John P. Casey of Commonwealth avenue. Dr. Casey and other noted brain specialists have attempted to arouse Father Short but to no avail. A constant watch is kept for some indication of a return to consciousness.

Because of his condition, Father Short has been given liquid nourishment through a nasal tube.

FINGERPRINTS GIRL ATTACKED OF ALL SOUGHT IN DORCHESTER

In an effort to make easier the identification of persons who are victims of amnesia, aid lost children, and help settle insurance claims, the state bureau of identification will begin a drive for the voluntary fingerprinting of all persons in the state, it was announced by Roscoe C. Hill, head of the bureau.

In his announcement, he made plain that prints taken would be kept separate from those of criminals. The drive for voluntary fingerprinting is being launched to take the stigma from the science.

Later, adults will be asked to allow their prints to be taken. It was pointed out that persons who have left home and died in hospitals and other institutions could be identified more easily by their fingerprints which would enable their survivors to collect on insurance policies.

Mary Austin, Author, Dies

Sarah P. N. M., Aug. 14.—Mary Austin, 65, noted writer of Scout-west stories and author of more than a score of books, died here today.

Beaten by a man who suddenly appeared from behind a tree and today, Miss Helen Burns, 22, of Rockfield street, Dorchester, was dragged 30 feet from the sidewalk into the rear of a barn at Rockfield street.

The attacker made his escape after Aaron Sugarman, a neighbor of Miss Burns, raced into the scene in his auto.

Miss Molly Sugarman, 19, also of Aaron, heard the girl's scream and informed her brother.

Miss Burns was treated by Dr. Samuel Merlin.

She was in a hysterical condition and will be confined to bed several days, the doctor said.

Miss Burns said the stranger appeared from behind a tree, grabbed her and held his hand over her mouth.

Her clothes were badly torn. Miss Burns told the police the cause of the darkness, she stated. If she could identify her attacker.

$87,000 Kitchen Ware Job for Hospital Balked

Complaining that nobody at the City Hospital knew what was needed and that a kitchen equipment engineer should be hired to study the proposed plans, the Boston Finance Commission ordered Mayor Mansfield to delay the planned purchase of $87,000 worth of equipment for the new $350,000 hospital kitchen.

The City Council, however, approved the mayor's request to purchase the equipment. The Mayor estimated he would make a complete survey before any money was spent.

The commission had sent an expert to the hospital it was revealed, whose investigation showed that the estimate was $10,000 higher than necessary. Too many persons would be added to the city payroll under present plans, the report said.

Money borrowed on hospital bonds for 10 to 15 years should not be used to purchase equipment made of a mixture of stainless steel, and galvanized iron, as it would wear out too quickly, it was claimed. Stainless steel instruments should be purchased, the commission suggested.

Driver Injured
by Dash of Horse

It was not hot enough to affect her, but whatever it was, it caused Daisy, a Charolais mare to bolt last night.

She dashed down Chelsea street, bounded her wagon off a street car and a parked auto, pitched her driver, Dominick Novello, to the pavement and stopped two blocks away.

Pastor Bailed

Rutland, Vt., Aug. 14.—Rev. S. E. Myers, pastor of the Unitarian Church, Burlington, pleaded not guilty in court here to charges of careless and negligent driving.

He was released on $1000 bail. The charge resulted from the death of Miss Annie Jones, a New York city nurse, in an accident at Brandon, Saturday night.

FROM NOW ON ALL OTHER REGULAR GASOLINES ARE OUT-DATED BY

new-action

PROCESS PROTECTED BY U. S. PATENTS

THEY'RE OUT-DATED because only the world's newest, biggest, most modern refining unit could produce "New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS. We had to build a new refinery to bring "New-Action" to you—no existing refinery equipment could do it.

This new refinery and our new and radically different refining principle, make it possible to convert more of the undeveloped energy in the raw crude oil into finished gasoline. It also gives "New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS greater SUSTAINING POWER and means a better gasoline in every way a gasoline can be better—in anti-knock—surfer power—easier riding—readier acceleration and lower cost per mile.

Get tomorrow's gas today! Say "New-Action" American and get action at any of our dealers and stations from Maine to Florida!

*SUSTAINING POWER--the retaining of efficiency between refinery and road performance.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS about the world's biggest, best, newest refining unit at Texas City, Texas

The refinery covers 400 acres of land. It required an average of 2,500 men per day—a period of nine months to actually construct the refinery (bids from time consumed in planning).

The refining unit is the most modern in the world—adopting the latest discoveries and innovations in the art of refining.

An idea of the mammoth size of the refining unit can be obtained from the following:

1. In a single operating day, this unit will produce enough gasoline to run an average automobile 9,000,000 miles, or about 360 times around the earth at the equator.

2. Six 8-room houses could be set inside a single one of its furnaces.

3. One of its fractionating towers—most massive ever built—is as high as a seven-story building.

4. 40½ miles of piping were used just in two furnaces to provide the required heat exchange surface.

5. This unit will turn out enough heavy bunker oil in a single day to produce, if used in making electric power, current sufficient to provide the home lighting requirements of a city of 2,000,000 people.

6. In addition, large quantities of kerosene, furnace oil for home heating, and gas are made.

Mary Surprises Veritien by Her Prompt Acceptance of the Notion of Miss Aris as One of Her Bridesmaids

CHAPTER III

I COULD have sworn that I heard the echo of Philip Veritien's query in the silence that for the fraction of a second followed the words, "Are you willing that Miss Aris shall be one of your bridesmaids?" In that instant, however, I found myself gripping the arms of my chair as I waited for Miss Aris's answer.

I was fairly certain, of course, what it would be. Since father had just consented to alter his will and elaborate scheme for their wedding trip, in order to give Philip and Mary the best possible honeymoon of their own planning upon which they counted, Mary could hardly refuse this request, no matter how true or distasteful to her it was.

MARY SAVES THE DAY

I wondered if I was allowing my prejudice to play too big a part in my imagination, or if I saw in Philip Veritien's eyes a distinct gleaming over the mental distress which he must have known was Mary's, while she hesitated for the fraction of a second over her answer to his question.

But my wonder was lost in admiration when Mary, with head flung high, and a smile playing about her lovely mouth, answered with just the right degree of enthusiasm:

"Willingly," she exclaimed brightly. "I'm more than willing. I'm delighted to play too big a part in my imagination, or if I see in Philip Veritien's eyes a distinct gleaming over the mental distress which he must have known was Mary's, while she hesitated for the fraction of a second over her answer to his question."

I sat up with a jerk which I hoped Philip Veritien did not see. Mary had planned to have to attend except during a maid of honor, while Ronald was to be Noel's best man.

But I could see that Mary's keen brain was planning something, because of this surprising upon her of Miss Aris, who had behaved the rest of us to catch her eye and return them in such fashion that Philip Veritien would not guess that anything out of the ordinary was in prospect.

"EVERYBODY IS A CAPTAIN"

Mr. Veritien's eyes narrowed slightly. I did not know your preparations were to be so elaborate," he said. "I understand that you were having a very small, informal wedding, with just few guests."

"Mary claimed a starting smile at him. "It's small," she said, "but it's like those revolutionary armies where everybody is a captain or something. All the youngsters in the gang are going to do something. You see, this is the first time ever of my married, and I hope it will be the last, and I want to have it as nifty as possible."

"This will involve a certain type of gown for the bride," Philip Veritien said stiffly.

"Yes, I'm afraid it would," Mary said. "You know I don't have to match Carolyn's, but—"

MADGE ACCEPTS A ROLE

I assumed promptly, though blindly, hoping that my own blindness would approach the correct one. "I think we shall be able to do it in time if we can get at things early tomorrow morning," I said, "and of course it will cost Mary Aris nothing, as she is furnishing the gown for the bride."

"That is not necessary," Mr. Veritien said quickly. "I— I put up a protesting hand."

"There can be no other way," I said decisively. "Now for details. Will you excuse Miss Aris from her duties in your office until the wedding is over?"

Mr. Veritien let his head glance rest first upon Mary's face, then upon mine. I had the mischievous, malicious consciousness that he had looked for something else than this ready acquiescence in his disconcerting plan.

"Willingly," he said, and I reflected that, as far as Aris' value to his organization was concerned, he no doubt could excuse her for all time.

"She will be at your disposal," he added. "Where do you want her to report to?"

MEN WILL LIKE NEW LEMON SILK YARN

Silk Yarn Makes Blouse for Richest Suit

It's a brand new and exciting story for handwork enthusiasts—this pure silk yarn that has so many marvelous attributes, and works up into such an exquisite thing. I saw this sweater knitted and pummeled unmercifully back it sprang into its original condition! It was beautiful, neither shirks nor stretches it can be knit to original size, and comes in vivid clear shades or delicious pastels. In a rough texture, it is suited to the sports mood, in a silkier soft finish it will make a sweater-house to proudly companion your loveliest dress suit. Notice the vastly becoming neck, and the clever way swirling, graceful stripes follow the grain through the whole sweater. If you would like directions for making this sweater, and further details on the new silk yarn, write to Annie Bink, Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"Trick" Birth Announcements

Dear Mr. Beckman: By Mrs. Beckman
The correct form is: Mrs. John Jones and daughter, Marion, acknowledge with deepest gratitude, Or the form may be: Mrs. John Jones and Miss Marion Jones acknowledge with deepest appreciation. Or this form: The family of the late Mr. John Jay Jones acknowledge with deepest appreciation. Copyright, 1934, by The Boston Evening American

1. The sending of dignified birth announcements is in good taste. The sending of "trick" or "bi-arré" announcements, which contain information of "weight" and "place of birth" and so forth, is not in good taste. As a general rule, people do not send birth announcements as much as they used to. Relatives and close friends know of the birth very soon, and the relatives and friends who are not so close of town may be sent telegrams or notes as soon as it is convenient. It is very difficult, as you imply, to buy simple, dignified birth announcements. I think that the only way to get a good one is to buy it. I like it better if it is all white. Do they come that way, with white ribbon around the small card to Mr. and Mrs. and with the ribbon around the engraved card? This card is especially clever and dignified. If they come only with the engraved ribbon, then you would, I suppose, have to use the colored ones if the baby is a boy, and pink ribboned one if the baby is a girl.

ACKNOWLEDGING SYMPATHY Dear Mr. Beckman: I in the hour of the death of a husband, when sending out acknowledgments of sympathy, which form is correct, is Mr. Marion Jones and daughter, Marion, acknowledge with deepest gratitude, Or the form may be: Mrs. John Jones and daughter, Marion, acknowledge with deepest gratitude, Or the form may be: Mrs. John Jones and daughter, Marion, acknowledge with deepest gratitude, Or the form may be: Mrs. John Jones and daughter, Marion, acknowledge with deepest gratitude.

Rare Backward Finesse Nets Small Slam

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

(This is one of a series of articles in which Mrs. Culbertson explains certain principles of the new Culbertson System of Play. The examples and rules given by Mrs. Culbertson in these articles have never been published heretofore and are exclusive in Boston with the American.)

It requires no particular finesse to make the ordinary garden variety of finesse. In fact, as I have frequently pointed out, the finesse in is working out some plan that will make the finesse unnecessary. There are some types of finesse, however, that are really complicated.

In the hand below a Small Slam contract was made by means of the backward finesse—most of the rarest and most beautiful of plays. The backward finesse seldom succeeds because it depends upon the favorable position of not one card but of two. The good player is therefore more unlikely to rely upon this play than upon any other. But after South in the hand below had exhausted every other possibility and the bidding told him that the backward finesse and by recognizing his last hope was doomed to failure, he turned in desperation to the backward finesse and by recognizing his opportunity made six spades South Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

North overbid somewhat, since he almost forced a Slam without knowing that South's spades were in fact weak. South was therefore fully justified in redoubling when West doubled. The Dealer, West, could not have known his partner had a diamond stopper, and surely should have suspected that one of his opponents was holding a singleton heart, so that his heart suit would never produce a trick. But, whether or not the bidding was correct, South found himself faced with the task of taking tricks.

The heart King was opened and North won with the Ace. A spade was led and West won South's King with his Ace, returning a heart. South, who was now in a tight spot, played another trump and went about establishing the diamond suit. His hope of establishing this suit was short-lived, however, on the second round West showed out and East was placed with five diamonds, enough to prevent any long cards ever being established in that suit.

South was now reduced to the necessity of avoiding the loss of a club trick, but he was positive that West's vulnerable Overall and subsequent double would have been made without the one remaining high card which was missing—the Queen of clubs. On this basis South returned the lead to his own hand, and he was positive that he led the Jack of clubs.

Aptitude for Motherhood Is Rare

By LISA GRENELLE

GOOD mothers, or rather successful mothers, are not born, nor are they graduated from any school, college or training course. Reading about child training can't do the trick. How is it done then? By the mothers themselves? Yes, partly; but mostly by the children.

Having a baby doesn't change a woman's character or give her anything except a great responsibility and a great opportunity. The mother has an instinctive desire to protect and possess her child, and physically she will care for him, even at the expense of her own comfort. But how will she learn to guide his tendencies, support his weaknesses and develop his strengths?

Each child is an additional problem. Each phase of its development must be handled differently, and to be entirely prepared for it in advance is not possible. Not only is each and every child different, but they sometimes change during growth into permanently different natures. Knowledge of other children is a help in bringing up your own, but it is not sure since no two are quite alike.

Don't depend on the feeling that you have an aptitude for motherhood, except in the very elementary sense, for few women have. And don't get discouraged because you make mistakes and lose control, or become disinterested at the way your child is developing.

The only mothers who fail are those who themselves have closed their minds and hearts against their own development, who will not adapt themselves to the constantly changing conditions that must accompany the growth of a child.

Most mothers who, having been good mothers to their children in early years, refuse to change their rules or requirements, and to retain these as they must keep their children as if they were babies.

Above all, to be successful mothers must never lose the respect for their own development, and to retain these as they must keep their children as if they were babies.

THE NICEST things in life are not always most costly or the hardest to acquire. If you have a fondness for October sunsets, woodlands in springtime with their mossy-sweet scent, long walks in the country where there is no fog, or smoke or city-grime, you will know how true this is.

In the late summer a woman's fancy turns to thoughts of the pigment of her skin has turned to a creamy shade. To learn the names of these inexpensive lemon blanches, call Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000. MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Monetarism & Weeks—The evidence of support now being given to monetarism by the Federal Reserve suggests that consideration be given to monetarism as a policy alternative especially among the so-called inflation doves.

Interest & Inflation—Credits versus debits in a market have no "cushion" or "cushion" will higher prices, but, in general, the "cushion" changes. It simply shows that it is difficult to hold the price level steady in the future. However, we still think that on a whole from the long-run point of view, it is attractive and that at current levels, it is not too high. We would include in such a list:

- 1. U.S. (and, International)
- 2. U.S. (and, International)
- 3. U.S. (and, International)
- 4. U.S. (and, International)
- 5. U.S. (and, International)
- 6. U.S. (and, International)
- 7. U.S. (and, International)
- 8. U.S. (and, International)
- 9. U.S. (and, International)
- 10. U.S. (and, International)

Monetarism & Weeks—If inflation is continuing to furnish the principal market stimulus it is logical to expect that the price level will continue to rise irregularly since as holders of securities which stand in contrast to the price level, they will tend to sell them in order to avoid inflation. This is not to say that inflation is not a serious issue.

Key Gets Measure High Cost of Racing
Of Boston's Capacity More About Ruth
To Pay Into His Park Enter Another Babe

By AUSTEN LAKE

FOR ALL HIS VISION and even recklessness, with his spare millions, it seems that Tom Hawkey has underestimated the Boston fans' capacity and willingness to pay into his pretty painted ball park with its candy box trimmings.

In sports promotion there is nothing so embarrassing as having to shut the doors in the face of 15,000 or 20,000 customers for lack of saloon and storage accommodations, as was the case Sunday.

I recall how Bob Quinn used to sit on the rim of his empty stands in the old Red Sox days and weep spiritually because his stands were as empty as the woods in winter. He had nothing to sell and the fans no desire to buy.

Bob could not afford any knickknacks and kept a crew of carpenters tacking up his funny wooden bleachers lest they tumble down in a clatter of sawdust. And he was forever scraping the bottom of his money trunk, or borrowing on his life insurance to meet the semi-monthly payroll.

Life was a continual round of harassment for the little hero, who, in the end, met back every penny to his stockholders and left the city with his pockets turned inside out and his life savings erased.

I cannot help but think what the mulling thousands, who edged around the closed gates at Fenway on Sunday, would have meant to Bob, viewing them from his upstairs windows.

BOB PRACTICAL BASEBALL MAN, knew that Boston was a willing baseball market. And when, finally, he turned the club and lumberland property over to Hawkey, he said: "I am not selling you short weight. You have the best baseball spot in the country."

In his safe, gathering dust through the years, Bob had an architect's drawing of the park he some day had hoped to erect. There were shanty turrets and wide runways, a double deck and shops along the street boundaries. When he departed he shored up the blue prints and stowed them with the office rubbish.

Hawkey shovelled out of his cash bins and built the dream that had been Bob's dream. When he raised the steel pillars for his stands, he said: "Build 'em stout because I may want to put another layer on."

So some time, maybe next winter, Hawkey is thinking of running up another tier in the grandstand. He is planning on a 1936 World Series, you see, and he does not intend to be embarrassed again as he was embarrassed Sunday.

THE COST OF HORSE HOTELAGE at Narragansett is $5 per animal, minimum, without private bath or front exposure. Still space is free. But the price of feeding, bedding, frequent shoeing and exercising runs the figure up to what it costs to board a human. That does not include veterinary service or the jockeys.

There are a number of one-horse owners at Narragansett, like L. Cheyne, who owns Old Fooling. J. D. Mikel, with 33 horses, most of which he picked up in claiming races at Rockingham, is the largest owner represented. His costs run $450 a day. Tedd Stone, the woman owner who has won every major stake in the country this year, pays out $240,000 a year and has never been ahead of the game. Few ever are.

ADD RUTHIANA, THINGS NEVER BEFORE published about the wealthy Yankee outfielder, Babe Ruth, who proposes to retire to a life of indolence after this season.

In 1928 he bet and lost $55,000 at Havana on a horse whose feet, before the race, were surreptitiously freighted with lead shoes. The item was a laugh for years in under-cover, and I might say ratty, gambling circles.

Ruth was seriously considered as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers last Spring. Bob Quinn told me so. Only when Bob tried to get Babe's release, the American League would not consent to let him pass from the circuit. Any A. L. club, wanting him for manager, could have had him for nothing.

Today Babe has a private office through Colonel Jack Ruppert, Yankee and Newark owner, to manage the minor league market, with the understanding that, after a year's probation, he will step into Joe McCarthy's boots, by which time Joe's contract will have run.

Babe demurs because he senses, if he goes down to the minors, even for a year, his public character will be lost.

Diving Queen Shows Swallow's Grace in Royal Flights

Eather Morison of Brookline, winner of many diving crowns, makes a beautiful picture as she tucks up for the invitation fancy diving event of the swim meeting at Rangeley Lakes, Me., on Saturday. Here she soars in the graceful running span drive. (Pictures by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

A front jackknife, standing start, here is executed by Miss Morison. In this dive the performer takes off confidently, and at the highest position of the body in the air the hips are bent vigorously and then straightened. The entry into the water is with feet, body and arms extended in a straight line, feet and hands close together.

Now for a more difficult feat, the running front dive, with a half twist. The dive begins like a simple front header, with the arms stretched outwards. Then a half twist is made, so that the entry into the water comes with the back turned toward the diving board. You'll need plenty of practice to polish this dive. If you'd like to see it executed perfectly, watch Miss Morison at the Rangeley Lakes meeting.

YANKEE AGAIN LEADS RIVALS

Mattapoisett Aug. 14—That Yankee would be named the American Cup defender seemed more certain than ever today following the Boston yankee's latest victory over her rivals.

Meeting Rainbow, Westmore and Vantage in a special 31-mile race off here on the New York Yacht Club course, Yankee, skippered by Charles F. Adams, former secretary of the British challenger Endeavour, sailed aboard the Rainbow.

Rainbow, considered Yankee's foremost rival for cup defense honors, was third, and the indolent Vantage fourth.

Grove Main Hope in Third Place Drive of Sox

By Joe Cashman

Less than two games out of third place, the Red Sox open their final home stand against the West of the Post-Tenry.

The first of the invaders from the wide open spaces are the St. Louis Browns. The league-leading Detroit Tigers, Chicago's last-place White Sox and Cleveland's Indians, now third, will follow.

The Harrison have a triple in line to finish in the berth occupied by the Indians. It would mean a 1936 season of the world's series divided into little bonus from Tom Hawkey and the honor of finishing higher than any Boston club's 1935.

Needless to say, the boys will give the fans a good show.

It's a hard world, mates, when one can make low weight, has riding ability very much out of the ordinary, holds a world's riding record—and can't get a single mount! That is the story of Jockey Albert Adams, shown riding a stable pet at Narragansett. What a comedown for a great rider! Adams set a world mark by riding nine consecutive winners in 1930 at the Marlboro, Md. track. For the remainder of that year he flamed. Since—scarcely a mount. Photo at right shows how he keeps fit as he hopes for the big chance. (Photos by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

B. C. Football Players Laboring at Heights

 Funny how a tang of frost in the air gets the gang thinking football. And now with the publication of the 1934 football code, showing the changes in the gridiron code, the "Old Guard" of coaches, officials and players, are deeply immersed in a subject which will be flooding the press within a couple of weeks.

One of Joe McKenna's biggest troubles at Boston College will be alleviated this fall with the filling in of six acres of parking space to be utilized as a practice field. Hundreds of trucks of team have already been dumped and leveled so that the varsity gridiron can in the future be saved for games.

A new drainage system has been started along the sides of the track by the varsity gridiron. It is a very good system. It is a very good system. It is a very good system. It is a very good system.

Dimp Zeitz, giant lineman and weighlifter, Chuck Galligan and Nick Deray have spent the summer working at Alumni Field, thereby making a few dollars to take care of college expenses and at the same time keeping themselves in prime condition for the opening of football.
